COMMUNICATIONS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by correspondents.

ALGOMA SASKATCHEWAN.

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—Considering that the "wonderful effect" of Bishop McLean in Holy Trinity Church, Winnipeg, was in favor of a church which has denounced the freedom of the press a "medieval error, which cannot be sufficiently detested," its favorable notice by the press speaks well for Christian charity generally. It is however a matter of surprise to the many warm admirers of the Bishop of Algoma here and elsewhere to learn that after having refused the richest bishopric in Canada to devote himself heart and soul to mission work, he should require a stern rebuke for his "want of love to our fellowmen," and a strong feeling obtains that such a rebuke is necessary have come in much better taste, and without possible suspicion of sinister motives, from some other source, in some other place. Bitterly opposed as has ever been the policy of the Church of Rome to all higher civilization, the hopelessness of making the differences in kind and degree of the doctrines taught by the various missionaries inflexible to the mind of the savages, renders it possible to welcome her in missionary work, nor did the Bishop of Algoma say one word against such labors, whatever second hand version of his sermon may have reached the ears of the Bishop of Saskatchewan. Even supposing that the very name of Protestant does not suggest the duty of its claimants in raising their voices in protest against the never sub-bering efforts of the Church of Rome to enrich upon the other professedly Christian churches, it is hard for the ordinarily constituted Protestant mind to see how his Lordship of Algoma should be saying, while preaching a most liberal sermon against sectarian jealousy, that is potent to very long and school boy, that a difference of far more vital import separates Protestants from Romanists.

We confess that something inherently different in the conditions under which our mind has been evolved from the pro-teplasma referred to by his Lordship on Sunday morning, or else the intellectual feebleness consequent amongst us in his Lordship's long absence from his diocese, prevents us from joining him in embracing as brethren members of a Church which so recently endorsed the Encyclical letter and the Syllabus, in which intolerance is denounced that "most personal and insane opinion that liberty of conscience and of worship is the right of every man," and denies the right of parents to educate their children outside the Catholic Church. We must not forget to congratulate his Lordship, as it is impossible to suspect, we confess a man of any exoteric cynicism differing from his pupil utterances, in having so thor-

ONE OF THE ORDINANCES.

We had intended to reserve criticism of the ordinances passed in the recent session of the North West Council until furnished with an official copy of them in detail, however, as notice has been already taken by other journals of one which is asserted to provide that "no judgment or action for debts contracted outside the North West Territories within six years of his arrival" and we think longer silence may be construed as a proof of our sympathy with such an ordinance, we depart from our original intention. That this enactment has excited much indignation outside the Territories is only what might have been expected, nor do we think honest settlers, upon mature deliberation, will approve it, although it may appear on the first blush to be framed in our interests. We certainly prefer in considering public ordinances, to judge them dispassionately, stepping away from the merely selfish standpoint, and the question which at once presents itself to our minds with regard to this enactment is as to whether the principle on which it is based be an equitable or honest one, and if not how it can fail in the long run to act prejudicially upon the interests of the people of the Territories and generally lower the tone of morality. To begin with what strikes us most forcibly is that this law will fail to effect its intention of protecting honest men, who by no fault of their own have fallen into financial difficulties, from being unable to restore their position, owing to unreasonable haste on the part of grasping creditors, for honest men will be the very last to avail themselves of such protection, while it will be eagerly taken advantage of by the unprincipled. Were it made impossible to recover debt of any sort by legal process, we could see some justice in that, because then there would be no inducement to wholesale merchants to thrust their goods down the throats of retailers, or for the latter to extend the process to the public, encouraging debt in the hope of being able to recover some how or other. The system once well started the temporary inconvenience to some would soon disappear, as people who have to do without what they can not pay for at the time, if for a time forced to exercise self-denial would end by learning to cut their coats according to their cloth, and no bad debts being incurred, the cost of everything would certainly lessen. What honesty there can be thought in allowing a man to get into debt without fear of any legal enforcement of claim outside the Territories, and refusing him the same privilege within its boundaries, we fail to see—in other words why should creditors within the Territories alone receive protection. Again we fail to see how a man who incurs debt should be any more safe in one portion of a country over the whole of which the same general principles of law obtain than in another, nor do we believe such protection will be allowed to stand by the Dominion Parliament. It would seem just about as reasonable to allow a man to commit crime in any other part of the Dominion and then assure him that as we wish to encourage the settlement of our Territories by ruffians he has only to come to us and be protected. As it is we fancy settlers need not go beyond the Territorial limits to make purchases, of any kind unless provided with the necessary amount of ready cash to pay up the last cent. Undoubtedly this ordinance will meet with the same fate as one of the same sort, tried in the earlier years of Manitoba did, and we think it is a pity that the North West Council has so unnecessarily incurred the odium of passing it. It occurs to us to inquire if debts being outlawed in the Territories in six years and no process possible within that time, the dishonest settlers can ever be called upon to pay at all, and whether freighters taking on their loads beyond our limits can recover their dues from settlers on delivery. The whole subject is a wide and interesting one.

FREEMASONRY.

Clergymen are but human, but how often distasteful their utterances are to those who are unbiased and think for themselves. Archbishop Lynch, Toronto, not content with reading the manifesto from the Pope against freemasonry, delivered a tremendous denunciation against those belonging to the order. They are sure to go down below. We are told to love those who despectfully use us, but here is one professing to expound the Gospel doing directly the opposite. Such conduct—which is not alone practised by Roman Catholic pastors—drives men away from churches, and makes religion the laughing stock of freethinkers. Freemasonry has those under its banners who would scorn to do a mean action, and it is a gross libel upon the members of a respectable institution, that they should be characterized as enemies of christianity, burning with a desire to wreck Catholic churches, and burn Catholic priests. Such ravings could only be expected from a lunatic. Archbishop Lynch has a right if his people will submit, to prevent them from joining secret societies, but he has no authority to abuse or wrong Protestants who choose to become freemasons. The last Pope was a freemason, and if they are at present engaged in an immoral work, and are enemies of society, he should not have been head of the Roman church. Such teaching is not manly, very far from being christian, and proclaims the preacher as a bigot.

BISHOP McLEAN.

His Lordship preached his first sermon here. Since his return from Great Britain to a crowded assembly in St. Mary's Church on last Sunday forenoon. The Bishop in addressing the congregation said: "I thank God for bringing his family and himself across over land and sea, safely among them again, and he was happy to see so many well-known and new faces in the large congregation before him. The enjoyment of a cathedral here, he wished it to be understood, had not been done away with altogether, but had been only postponed till a sufficient income had been raised to enable them to procure an able and godly man to be its pastor. The nomination of such a man with him, but that would only be nominal, as he should be a man of their own choice." In the mean time he would appoint a curate, who, assisted by the Principal of Emmanuel College (Rev. W. R. Flett), would attend to the pastorate of the Church, but this was only a temporary arrangement. Emmanuel College would be reopened on Monday, when his friend, the Principal, would be felt sure to do all in his power to advance its usefulness, his presence amongst them presented him from expressing all he felt towards him, and the high respect he had of his ability. Natural science now occupied a prominent part in education, and the appliances and chemicals were on the way here to enable the Principal to lecture on the subject, which would be of great use to young men anxious to qualify themselves as good farmers. The first meeting of the university would be held in October, when representatives from all denominations were expected to be present, and who would have an equal right to its benefits. He could not see the end of his own and his children's life would be an honor to any denomination. He was glad to hear the Presbyterian Mission in Prince Albert were to have a school, and trusted no envy would arise, as by working together they supported each other." The Bishop in an excellent sermon on the text, Psalm 42, 1, paid a high tribute to the memory of the late William McKay, H. B. C. Port Pitt. His Lordship in the evening preached in the temporary chapel in 1884, which notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather was crowded to overflowing.

Mr. A. E. Forget, clerk of the North West Council, accompanied by Mr. R. Macdonald, arrived here from Bathford on Monday evening. Mr. Forget called at our office on Wednesday and said that as soon as the ordinance was passed they would be forwarded to him. He is leaving on Friday morning.
